Treemembrance Programme

Birmingham TreePeople are now offering Birmingham's approach to requests for memorial and commemorative trees. The Treemembrance Programme page is up on our website, and since then we have already received five applications.

Ian McDermott (Mac, bottom left) of BTP has been helping one sponsor, Ruth Tetlow (below third from the left) assess an area for a memorial tree to be planted in her chosen location. Pete Hill (bottom right), the Tree Officer for the City of Birmingham, attended and alongside Mac to make sure the species was suitable for the location.

The main aims of the Treemembrance Commemorative Tree Programme are to encourage the retention of large mature trees by adoption, and to further add new trees to Birmingham's Urban Forest. Doing this would also provide the sponsor the opportunity to commemorate an event or person. People often wish to plant trees as memorials or to commemorate major life events such as:

Weddings | Engagements | Holidays |
Anniversaries | Baptism | Memorials | Special
Events | Parents | Friends | Outstanding
Accomplishments
